Hannah Albion is a talented associate who supports KJK's Litigation & Arbitration team. She is dedicated to obtaining effective and successful resolutions to her client's most critical issues.

Hannah holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in psychology & pre-law from Bowling Green State University, where she minored in political science, philosophy, economics and law. After obtaining her undergraduate degree, Hannah earned her Juris Doctorate from Cleveland State University Cleveland-Marshall College of Law. During her time at C|M|LAW, Hannah served as the Editor-in-Chief of the Journal for Law & Health as well as a member of the Cleveland-Marshall Moot Court program, an organization designed to develop, refine and showcase brief-writing and appellate advocacy skills.

Originally from Fort Myers, Florida, Hannah spends her free time outdoors, often exploring Cleveland and discovering all that the city has to offer. A foodie at heart, Hannah enjoys trying out new restaurants in Cleveland's prominent food scene.
